A note from the Superintendent and Elementary and Jr. High Principal,

If you don't like the weather in Nebraska sometimes you just have to wait 5 minutes and it'll change. We broke a state record on Thursday (the day I'm writing this newsletter) for the coldest mark on record at -18 degrees. When you get this newsletter it's supposed to be a balmy 44, so hopefully, we are getting closer to nicer weather. It's really hard to hang in there on these cold days, but we all know that with every day that passes, the sun starts getting a little brighter and staying out a little longer, and eventually we might just get to see our front lawns again.

The neat thing about schools is that they are kind of similar to the weather, with one key difference, we can help determine our weather. I read somewhere that the grass isn't greener on the other side, it's simply greener where you water it. That's essentially the job of an educator, making sure that the students we are growing have what they need in order to thrive where they are and into the future. Over the last few months, we have been watering the grass like no other. I wanted to highlight a few of the great things going on within our district that we can all be proud of moving forward.

The first area to highlight is in the area of academics which has the potential for our community to benefit like never before. Last month Mrs. Weideman came to my office with an opportunity for our students to take dual credit enrollment for free. Cheyenne County was able to benefit from a large endowment where our school can provide tuition assistance for our high school students who are taking dual enrollment classes. This great opportunity to organize our efforts and get our students one step closer to degree completion before they even leave our doors. We currently have quite a few students taking advantage of dual enrollment and this program would make it possible for those students and their families to start thinking about the future.

We also completed a curriculum review in our reading series at the Elementary School and Junior High Levels. The process that we went through with our staff helped us pick a curriculum that will challenge our staff and students to use the most up-to-date teaching methods and tools to achieve great things. The curriculum at Leyton is an area of great strength because of the work we have done to prioritize academics. Our staff is using a wonderful curriculum across the board and many of the programs we use are under three years old. When you come into our building you will see students doing science and not reading about science, the students are working hard to understand complex math with great instruction, and this list could go on and on. Leyton Public Schools is proud of the work we do inside the classroom because it sets the stage for all other things in life. I'm honored to watch it happen every day.

The example I want to share with you is from our extracurricular activities. We have a school committed to the success of our students. Our coaches this winter in speech, band, Esports, FFA, and basketball, the teams are putting our students in a position to not just compete but to excel in their areas of interest. The weather is pretty nice lately in and around our school, I hope you can see that as a community member, because these are just a few examples of the future we are trying to build here at Leyton Public Schools. Mr. Gamble told me the other day that it takes an Army to run this place, and I think he's onto something with that comment. He meant that it takes dedicated people who care more about the success of others than their personal success.

I wanted to close out my newsletter this month with a thank you. Thank you to all of our community members for showing up to games and events to support our students. The time and effort you put into being here for us helps us water the grass where it's needed most.

March Newsletter

Kevin Thomas, principal

I am going to take a break from updating you on our progress of the book "Chop Wood and Carry Water" and tell you instead of a trip I recently took courtesy of the United States Air Force. I am not sure how this aligns with education or Leyton Public Schools, but someday, if not already, one of our students will be a member of the Air Force and I thank you in advance for your service.

As a director of High West Energy, I was invited on a "Civic Leaders Tour" which was a group tour of two air force bases Ellsworth Air Force Base and Vandenberg Space Force Base. Ellsworth is located in Rapid City, South Dakota and Vandenberg is located in Lompoc, California. The group consisted of several school administrators, mayors, city administrators, and a state legislator. The tour was sponsored by the air force base in Cheyenne, Warren Air Force Base. It was a very interesting tour with much to be seen and learned.

We began our trip at the Cheyenne Airport boarding an A130 cargo plane bound for Rapid City. After about one hour in the air, we landed at Ellsworth. Ellsworth is a well kept base and very impressive. The base commander, Colonel Sheffield, addressed the group, sharing some insight about the base. It seems each air force base specializes in what they do. Ellsworth's specialty is flying bombers.

Ellsworth is the home of the "Raiders". This nickname was given to the base after World War II. Bombers from Ellsworth raided Japan at the end of the war and bombed Tokyo, thus earning this moniker. Ellsworth currently has 21 B1 bombers at the base. These bombers were first commissioned in 1974. After several upgrades, the B1's are still the primary bomber for the air force. We were able to tour one of these planes as it set in a hangar at the base for maintenance. This plane is massive, 146 feet long and a wing span of 137 feet. It seats four people, two pilots and two weapon systems operators. The rest of the plane carries fuel and bombs.

The B1 holds around 30,000 gallons of fuel and can hold 24 nuclear bombs or 80 conventional bombs weighing 37,000 pounds. The bomber flies at Mach one speed and is able to drop bombs going 800 mph. It is a stealthy gray color with the base emblem on its tail wing. The B1 can fly approximately 5,000 miles loaded and 7,500 miles with no load on board. From what I remember, there is at least one B1 bomber flying around the world every week on a bomb run. The flight lasts 33 hours, non-stop, with midair fueling. The crew is required to stay awake the entire time. The presenter informed us this was made possible with several different strategies, including the use of pharmaceuticals.

The air force allowed us to get in the cockpit and the weapon system operators' seats. This space was cramped and it was obvious the bomber was not designed for the comfort of the passenger. If you care to purchase one of these planes be prepared to spend $300,000,000.00. The B1 bombers will be replaced by the new B21 bomber which are currently being built. At the end of the day, we witnessed a F14 fighter jet take off for a training flight.

After spending the night in Rapid City, we boarded the cargo plane, in the wind and blowing snow, bound for southern California. Leaving a temperature in the teens and landing in California with a temperature of 68 degrees was a welcome reprieve from the winter weather. While in flight to California, we were afforded the opportunity to stand in the cockpit of the airplane with the pilots.

They gave us headphones to use so we could communicate with the pilots. It was the first time for me being in the cockpit while in the air. So while I had the attention of the pilots, I thought I would ask if I could fly the plane?? Well, the pilots said no and I'm going WTH? The cockpit has a much better view than what I am used to as a passenger.

After landing at Vandenberg Space Force Base, we toured the base and visited their missile museum. Vandenberg specializes in launching rockets and missiles. The major reason for our visit to Vandenberg was to witness the test launch of a Minuteman III missile. That evening, a test launch of the missile was scheduled between the hours of 2100 and 0500 the next morning, depending on the weather.

The launch went off without a hitch at 2100 hours. Our group witnessed the launch of the Minuteman. The Minuteman is the same missile that surrounds our towns/villages in Nebraska. The Minuteman III missile is an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM). These missiles can travel 8,000 miles, flying at 15,000 mph with a single nuclear load. They reach their target in 30 minutes or less depending on the distance of the target. The preparation and time it takes to launch a missile successfully is significant. Not to mention the cost. Warren Air Force Base in Cheyenne is responsible for the upkeep and protection of 150 Minuteman missiles.

We boarded the cargo plane the next morning for a three hour flight back to Cheyenne. The flights went well, smooth with little to no turbulence in the air. After making this tour, I am very grateful for the men and women in uniform. Their time and dedication is to be commended while protecting the United States.

And so Warrior Nation that is my message this month. If as a high schooler you are thinking about a military career the air force may be the way to go as they have some very nice equipment.

As always, my door is open, so feel free to stop.
